Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Thursday 13 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Wet and breezy for most today, largely dry for Cornwall.

Today:
A wet, breezy day for most as rain persists across the region, occasionally heavy. Into the afternoon, this rain is likely to fragment into more showery bursts, and the odd sunny spell could develop. Meanwhile, staying largely fine in Cornwall. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Tonight:
Showers will likely ease and become more scattered through the evening, clearing towards the west overnight, allowing some clear spells to form in the east. Breezy winds beginning to ease. Minimum temperature 7 deg C (45 deg F).

Friday:
A drier day for most, with sunny spells. The odd scattered shower remains likely, but these lighter and less frequent than recently. Cornwall seeing the cloudiest and most showery conditions. Maximum temperature 16 deg C (61 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
A band of rain will cross the region Friday night, then unsettled with sunshine and showers for the rest of this period. These showers heavy and possibly thundery at times.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.